This project consisted of renovating existing office space located on the second level of the Burger Building and the Sussex Building at Larimer Square. The newly designed space houses the corporate offices of The Larimer Group, which is responsible for the maintenance of the Larimer Square properties. The goal of the design of these new offices was to create an environment that not only reveals the character of a rich, vintage space, but also conveys the image of a current and exciting office, reflecting the occupants' desire to merge the historic with the contemporary.
